

Detroit Waldorf School students celebrate May Day

May 2, 2017

Seventh-grader Amir Rider, center, 12, dances around the May Day pole with classmates. Clarence Tabb Jr., The Detroit News

Detroit Waldorf School third-graders Stella Greene, center, and Korede Green-Balogun, center-left, sing during their May Day Celebration, May 2, 2017. Clarence Tabb Jr., The Detroit News

Seventh-grader Lily-Claire Mitchell, 13, dances around the May Day pole with classmates. Detroit Waldorf School students donned flower crowns to dance around a mayday pole as the entire school community celebrates this Northern Hemisphere festival heralding the arrival of summer. Clarence Tabb Jr., The Detroit News

Ameila Karr, 13, dances with her classmates. Clarence Tabb Jr., The Detroit News

Seventh graders Bleu Borromeo, left, Jade Abner-Gilmore and Irie Ottley, all 13, play their flutes the dance routine of their classmates around the May Day pole. Clarence Tabb Jr., The Detroit News